

MINOR MENTION.

Reiter, the tailor, for fall goods.
The revival meetings at the Methodist church continue to draw big crowds.
The registry lists are said to show an increase of fully nine hundred in the number of voters in the city.

The city council will next meet on Monday evening of next week, that being the regular monthly meeting.
Bill Galvin says he doesn't want to serve as captain of police, which leaves the mayor free to appoint Charlie Walters, which he will probably do.

The superior court is still busy with the case of the Western Cattle & Horse company against J. Mueller, and the case promises to occupy many days yet.
Judge Whiting, the democratic candidate for governor, spent Sunday in the city, and with some of his democratic friends. He has a meeting at Atlantic to-day.

Fremont Benjamin and A. W. Askwith, who were partners in jumping from a republican convention into a democratic one, have now joined together in the law business.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church are requested to meet at the church at 2 o'clock this afternoon to decide on the location of the church. Mrs. George T. Phelps, President of Woman's Exchange.

Perry Reel, the democratic candidate for sheriff, has now resigned his position as postmaster at the town which bears his name. This relieves the democratic administration of the necessity of removing him for offensive partisanship.

It is said that a number of citizens have banded themselves together to see if they cannot get the next grand jury to take some action in the saloon cases, unless the observance of hours is enforced, and especially the closing on Sundays.

Lon Davis, Ed Williams, P. Sharp and William Wycoff, who were arrested for general disorderliness on the streets Saturday night, were before the court yesterday. Davis was fined, and the others are to have a hearing to-morrow evening.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy brakeman, W. F. Drew, who was arrested on the charge of robbing H. J. Brown of a watch, has given bail of $500 on his appearance for hearing to-morrow evening. It is predicted that the matter will be fixed up so that the prosecution will be dropped.

The city engineer has about all he can do to explain to property owners and citizens generally about the new sewerage act, almost every one having an idea that they have discovered something wrong, or which could be bettered, and he has got his nerves and patience sorely tried, but he manages not to lose much flesh, and keeps reasonably good natured about it.

Smith & Loercke, the Main street bakers, now roll out onto the streets, the handsomest and most convenient delivery wagon ever seen here in that line. It is a novel arrangement, and is made and decorated in the latest metropolitan manner, and attracts attention and excites admiration wherever it appears. The firm should not only feel proud of it, but it is a credit to the city through whose streets it rolls.

The beer garden dances Sunday nights are again being denounced as most disorderly and disgraceful. It seems that there might be some police regulation instead of having every sort of a place to go on the free-for-all plan. During a recent spurt of reform the mayor was very strict in regard to the Sunday night dances, but he has got over it as quickly as he got into it.

The work of laying sewer pipes in the alley in the rear of Kiel's hotel commenced yesterday, but the property owners are now urging the council to have the sewer run north and connect with Fifth avenue, instead of running south, as there is little prospect of the sewer being extended south for some time, and they want to get the sewer out of the alley as soon as possible, and the Fifth avenue sewer will probably be laid in the spring.

The concert given last evening at the opera house by the Schubert quartette called out a good sized audience, not so large as one at the order of the entertainment merited, but still an excellent one for this city, and one composed of the best classes. The programme was an enjoyable one, and while of a high musical order, it still has a tinge of popularity to it. The artists who afforded the public such a treat are certainly entitled to high praise, and those who secured this city such an entertainment deserve the thanks of the public.

Those who heard Congress man Herr of Michigan, when he spoke here two years ago, will need no urging to hear him again next Saturday evening. Those who did not hear him then cannot afford to lose the opportunity of hearing him this time. He is one of the clearest thinkers, most thoroughly educated and most popular speakers whom that state has produced, and his public life has afforded him for this the people solid facts, while his natural keenness of perception and brilliancy of thought makes his addresses such that they command and hold the attention of any audience. He should have a house erected to the utmost, and those who attend will be amply repaid.

BIG BATCH OF CITY BUSINESS.

More Paving Ordered, and Important Actions on Various Matters.

ELECTION OF A FIRE CHIEF.

A Counterfeiter Almost Nipped—A Variety of News Gleanings In and About the City.

Municipal Legislators.

The city council spent the whole of yesterday forenoon in considering various matters of interest to the city, the session proving an important one. All the members were present, as well as the mayor.

A petition for a lamp post at the corner of Avenue D and Tenth street was referred.

The mayor informed the council that he had ordered the gas lighted, even on moonlight nights, on such streets as were being torn up by improvements, so as to do away with the possibility of accidents. This led to the inquiry as to what arrangement had been made with the gas company, and the answer was that the gas was being supplied under the old contract, notwithstanding the recent roar for a new one.

Mr. W. S. McMicken requested the council to consider the justice and advisability of a different mode of assessment for paving. He owns the lot at the corner of Willow avenue and Main street, and while he has been assessed for the paving in front of the property on Main street, the city now proposes to make him pay for paving Willow avenue. He claims that the lots north of his on Main street are greatly benefited by the paving of Willow avenue, and should pay a part of the expense. This led to a discussion of the modes of making special assessments. It was claimed by some that in Chicago, Omaha and other cities assessments were made in accordance with the benefits derived, and not on the basis of the property which directly fronted on the paving. It was stated that Judge Clinton urged the point of assessing in accordance with the benefits derived, instead of by frontage. In some cities a jury is given the task of deciding in regard to these benefits. In others a certain portion is paid by the abutting property, and the rest by the paving district in which the work is done. As it is important to settle this question before any more work is done, the matter was referred to the city attorney to report as soon as possible.

John Stewart asked the council to settle in some way for filling done by him on Fourth avenue and Union avenue, the property abutting not being of sufficient value to warrant a suit. Referred.

The matter of a change of grade of the sidewalk on Scott street was discussed at length, and referred to the city engineer and attorney to prepare the necessary resolutions, if the property owners in writing would agree to relieve the city from any damages.

Resolutions were passed ordering Pearl street paved with cedar blocks; also the alley north of Broadway from Main to North Second street, and the alley east of Main from Fifth avenue to Story street, the work to be let to the lowest bidder.

Bids were opened for filling the intersections on Myrster street, and the work let to Fred Klein at 20 cents a yard for filling on Sixth street, in general fund warrants, or 16 cents cash; on Seventh street one cent more a yard. The only other bidder was George Wawoliver, whose bid was only one cent higher on Seventh street, and just the same as Klein on the other.

Some communications were read from Mr. Vincent in regard to the street of the council to his annual contract for the sewer ditch, unless he proceeded to put on a full force of men and teams, and push the work to completion. Mr. Vincent insisted that he had worked whenever the weather would permit, but that the council had not kept its agreements, and that he could not go on with the work unless he was paid some cash on his estimate. He claimed to have spent $12,000 of the warrants, but he could not use them as collateral, and he must have the cash. If the city would sell the bonds, as was promised, then he could be assured that he could have some cash to pay the men. As he understood the law, the defaulting party in a contract could not annul the contract, and as the city was in that position he proposed to insist on his rights. He suggested that the various actions of the council in regard to the matter and the way he had been treated would form very interesting reading matter. There was considerable talk, and the sentiment of the council seemed rather in favor of seeing if Mr. Vincent would not agree to throw up the job, and then the city could go ahead and employ men and teams, and pay them in warrants, and get the work finished. It was estimated that it would take about $5,000 more to complete the enterprise. A special committee consisting of Aldermen Siedentopf, Myrster and Straub, and the city attorney, were appointed to confer with Mr. Vincent.

Alderman Shugart offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the mayor be requested to strictly enforce the Sunday ordinance relating to closing the saloons upon that day.

This made a little flurry. It was stated that the hotels could not very well close their bars tight, and that the electric lights burned at other saloons Sunday as well as other days, and that some of the saloons had no back doors, etc. The mayor said that if the resolution was passed it should be strictly carried out, and he would not tolerate any saloon that violated the sentiment of a large number of people in declaring that it was disgraceful the way the saloons were running Sunday, and after further talk it was decided to let the resolution lay over until next Monday night, and that if the saloons did not brace up some it would then be passed and all shut up tight.

A resolution was passed instructing the marshal to arrest within three days all saloon keepers who had not paid their license for October.

J. T. Stewart requested the council to take some steps to have the street filled up so that the Q. track leading to his packing house could be relaid, as the business could not be started up until then. Referred.

Some talk was indulged in regarding the new bridge across the river. It was suggested that the old dump kept the water from running off in case of a flood, and that the building of another dump would make it still worse. Some thought there was an old contract with the Union Pacific requiring the company to make tunnels or other water ways through the old dump, at each street, and a resolution was passed that the company should pay for the removal of the dump, and the new one built in the old dump and the new one.

The city engineer and committee on railways were instructed to investigate as to whether the putting up of the new bridge would so narrow the water course as to endanger the lower part of the city in case of high water.

The city engineer suggested that the council had not better be too rash about their proceedings, as he wanted to see the new bridge built, and he was not any too certain that the council was right. He said after all the talk. He thought it more probable that the company would build a new bridge, and then repair the old bridge, and then take away the temporary structure.

The railway committee were instructed to see about the practicability of getting a free wagon and foot bridge put in across the river at the foot of Broadway, the bridge to be a foot bridge.

The same committee was instructed to correspond with the officials of the C. B. & Q. railway company in regard to having them build a new depot, it being greatly needed here.

The long delayed election of a street supervisor and chief of the fire department then came. In order to clear the deck for action it was decided to do away with the further services of Mr. Ross as street supervisor, and elect a man under the new ordinance. The salary was fixed at $75 a month. On an informal ballot E. S. Barnett received four votes, and Wm. Hilly two. On the formal ballot the election of Mr. Barnett was made unanimous.

The election of a new chief of the fire department called forth some sly play. The opposition to the election of D. F. Fischer seemed anxious to retain Charles Sanderson. He has been serving as temporary chief, and has been allowed ten dollars extra a month, above the $65 which he draws as a regular fireman. It was suggested that this arrangement should be continued, as the city would not only have a good man but would save by having one man fill both positions. Those who felt in duty bound to elect Fischer, he having been elected before, and having made the legal fight and been defeated in trying to secure just what the council had ordered him to take, would not have it this way, and on an informal ballot Sanderson received one vote, Jake Rogers one, Harry Birkimbine one, Elmer three and Fisher one. The formal ballot gave Fischer four, Rogers one, and Pat Lacy one. The election of Fischer was declared.

The request of Judge Aylesworth to be paid his salary in cash instead of general fund warrants was reported adversely by the committee. Alderman Siedentopf was very sharp and keen in his position to the paying of the judge in cash. He insisted that the law was very plainly against paying him in any other way than city warrants. In addition to this he felt that it was not fair for the judge to insist on cash. The salary was a good one, $3,000 a year, and while workmen were obliged to take $1.50 a day for hard work and get their pay in warrants, he thought the judge could stand warrants. He felt that the judge was too good natured, and did not get as many fines into the city treasury as he might. He cited some instances. There was a fierce fight between one man with a knife and another with a brickbat, and yet both were discharged free. A farmer and a butcher had a cow, the tail had been twisted off, the animal had been clubbed so that its eyes were bulged out, and a fire had been built under her, to make her get up and move, she having been so used up by a sixteen mile drive that she could go no further. The parties were arrested for cruelty to animals. Nothing was done with them, but this did not like the idea of a judge threatening the council that unless he was paid in cash he would allow the saloon men and others to pay their fines and licenses in city warrants, and thus cut off the cash income. On a vote the motion to pay him in cash was lost, Alderman Myrster and Shugart alone voting in its favor.

The council then adjourned.

A Carriage Overturned.
A carriage containing Mrs. T. J. Evans and two ladies from the institution for the deaf and dumb, Miss Clement and Miss Wilcoxson, was tipped over on the corner of Sixth and Myrster streets by driving a little too close to the edge of the grading. All the ladies were somewhat injured. Mrs. Evans receiving a cut on the temple, Miss Wilcoxson quite a cut on the cheek, and Miss Clement's arm being broken and her shoulder bruised. The ladies were taken to the home of Mrs. Evans, and are getting along well, with good prospects of speedy recovery from their injuries.
